Investment Perspectives

Market

Equity markets continued to favor value stocks in a style rotation that began with the vaccine rollouts and US presidential election in early November, though the difference in returns between the cheapest and most expensive stocks in the index was more modest than at earlier points in the year. Returns didn't vary much across sectors or regions. By sector, Financials and Energy rose alongside the continued economic recovery in most of the developed world, with banks in particular benefitting from an increasing interest rate environment. By region, Canada and Europe led, the latter buoyed by a pickup in vaccinations and eased pandemic restrictions.

Portfolio

As the economic cycle continues to be the focus of many investors for the first half of 2021, our positioning reflects a more balanced approach characterized by our long-term perspective and focus on identifying quality-growth companies that are attractively valued. We are underweight the cyclical Financials and Energy sectors, which have rebounded alongside recent optimism for a recovery. However, we are overweight the equally economically sensitive Materials and Industrials sectors, where our companies should benefit not only from a surge in post-pandemic capital spending this year, but in years to come, as businesses invest in new software, equipment, and factories for future growth.

- Netherlands-based Adyen dragged on returns in Information Technology (IT). Shares of the payment processor have given back some of their gains after very strong returns in 2020.
- In Consumer Staples, shares of both L'Oréal and Ambev responded positively to the gradual return to pre-pandemic patterns. L'Oréal benefitted from rising optimism for higher demand from its travel retail business. Ambev reported a strong rebound in beer sales in Brazil as bars and restaurants reopened after lockdowns.
- Within Emerging Markets, our two Brazilian holdings outperformed. In addition to Ambev, Itaú Unibanco reported strong loan growth and lower write-offs in the first quarter of 2021.

- In Financials, Itaú's May bounce only partially offset its drag YTD. Another detractor has been Ping An Insurance, which recently purchased a stake in a troubled Chinese conglomerate that will require considerable time and effort to restructure.
- We have underperformed across IT, from semiconductors to technology hardware to software and services. Some of the strategy's strongest performers last year (Infineon Technologies, Adyen) are among the worst YTD.
- Within Industrials, Swedish industrial equipment maker Alfa Laval has benefited from rising demand due to the recent economic rebound; its emphasis on clean technology solutions should also drive growth over the longer term.
